Constantinople Sends Out Report That
Allied Armies Have Been Crushed
—London Discredits the Statement.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, April 29.—The fighting at the tip of the Gallipoli peninsula across which the British have strung their forces, and an effort to dislodge the Germans from Steenstrate, the only port on the west bank of the Yser, which the invaders have been able to hold since their recent rush in Flanders, today are the war areas which, although comparatively small, hold the greatest possibilities for far-reaching results.

Although the Turks and Germans maintain that the British on the west and French on the east side of the Dardanelles are being crushed in their attempts to press forward, newspaper readers in London are being told that all official statements from Berlin and Constantinople bearing on the Dardanelles struggle are not only censored, but framed with a special purpose of exerting favorable influence on Italy and other wavering neutrals.

Land 80,000 Men.
Berlin, wireless, April 29.—Advices from Constantinople as given out here today by the Overseas News agency, are that the forces which the French and British attempted to land at the Dardanelles numbered about 80,000 men. Landing operations were undertaken at three points in European and one on Asiatic side of the straits.

British Army at Gallipoli.
London, April 29.—The following dispatch has been received by the Exchange Telegraph Company:

"The British force landed on the European coast of the Dardanelles has been entrained solely with the mission of occupying the Gallipoli Peninsula, defended by 60,000 Turks. French on Asiatic Side.

"The French force has been landed entirely on the Asiatic coast with the object of advancing along the littoral to keep pace with the British on the opposite coast.

The bombardment of the straits was twelve hours. It was directed particularly at Kilit Bahr.

In a dispatch from Athens the correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph company says fierce fighting raged through Wednesday on the shore of Kilit Bay, on the western side of the Gallipoli Peninsula, eighteen miles north of the southern extremity, resulting in success for the allies.

The loss of the Turks was serious. One entire battalion was captured by the allies.

Turks Make Claims.
Constantinople, April 27, via Amsterdam, April 29, via London.—There has been here an official announcement bearing on the fighting of the Dardanelles which reads:

"Sighdare, to the west of Seddul Bahr, has been cleared of the enemy. The enemy who lay for three days at Sighdare, endeavored to maintain their positions under cover of their ships, but early this morning our troops stormed these positions and forced the enemy back upon the whole front, inflicting severe losses. Part of the enemy fled in the direction of the sea and taking to their boats disappeared. Those unable to escape raised the white flag and surrendered in masses.

Later reports declare that hostile forces estimated at four brigades have been driven into the sea on the coast of Kaba Tepeh.

GERMAN PRISONERS
ALL TREATED ALIKEEnglish Officials Explain Reasons
Why Submarine Prisoners Are Kept in Separate Quarters.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, April 29.—In view of the widespread belief that the German submarine prisoners in Great Britain are being treated with severity, Thomas J. McNamara, parliamentary secretary of the admiralty, explained at length in the house of commons today the only difference between their treatment and that accorded other prisoners is that they are kept separated from other German prisoners of war.

"Pending the fitting up of a fortress where it is proposed to keep German submarine prisoners hereafter," he said, "they are at the Chatham and Devonport detention barracks. They are not in solitary confinement and they have all privileges and rationals accorded other prisoners."

The speaker also included the rights of officers to have servants, clean quarters, privilege of smoking room and gymnasium, permission to write and to receive letters and facilities for obtaining German and English books and money from friends.

ALLIED TROOPS LAND IN DARDANELLES STRAITS UNDER PROTECTION OF WARSHIP GUNS

This picture shows some of the war vessels of the Allies in the Dardanelles, guarding the landing on the shore of British bluejackets, who will aid the troops under the command of General d'Amade in a combined land and sea attack on the Turkish forts. It had been known for a long time that the Allies were landing men at the Dardanelles, but a recent announcement from the British war office that the land and sea campaign against the Turkish fortifications had begun was the first official confirmation of the report.

RECOMMENDS PROBE INTO PRISON LABORREPORT MADE TO GOVERNOR TO-DAY BY LEGISLATIVE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE.

LOCAL SCHOOL'S NEED

Sanitary Plumbing, City Water Supply,
Laundry and Kindergarten
Recommended at School for Bilnd.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., April 29.—In the belief that the most difficult problem presented to the state board of control is the proper employment of prison labor, the legislative investigating committee in a report to the governor and the legislature today recommended that the governor be empowered to appoint a committee of three to five men to investigate the question of prison labor and industries. It suggests that the committee be composed of a representative of those who have made a study of the criminal, a manufacturing representative and a labor representative. This report should be made to the governor not later than Dec. 1, 1916. The report points out that the population at both the prison and the reformatory are increasing and that the problem now involves the reformation of nearly 1,200 men and boys.

Favor Special Report.
Along the same line the committee suggests that legislation be enacted so that the committee be empowered to adequately examine these state institutions in the short time allowed and the recommendation is made that a special committee be appointed by the governor to investigate these institutions and also report on or about Dec. 1, 1916. Incidentally the report declares that the present committee is composed of underwriters and to the safety of the state buildings are deemed "uncalled for" by the superintendents of the institutions and they are referred to the board of control for further investigation.

The board recommends an appropriation of $4,000 for additional hospital equipment at the Mendota hospital for the insane. It is proposed to an expenditure of $100,000 for a psychopathic hospital at the Northern hospital, under the immediate installation of the new ventilation system and other minor improvements. While at this hospital the committee attended a moving picture show furnished by the university extension course, which it declared "was a splendid advertisement of a fine company. We desire to register a protest against such advertising entertainments."

Blind School Improvements.
For the blind the committee recommends the installation of sanitary plumbing; that the board of control contract with the city of Janesville for a new building to house the school, built at a cost of not to exceed $12,000 and an additional sum of $6,000 be appropriated to construct a new kindergarten.

Practically the only important recommendation regarding the industrial school at Waubesa was that boys be paroled at the age of 18 years instead of 21. For the state reformatory at Waubesa the committee recommends that the cell house in the north wing be converted into a dormitory ward for older prisoners; better lighting system be installed in the yard; a playground be secured for 100 acres of land; that an expert accountant go over the books every three months; that road building by prisoners be extended as much as possible.

At the public school at Sparta the committee recommends an appropriation of $35,000 for a new school building to replace the old frame school. The committee also recommends that $5,000 for a water reservoir be appropriated to be used whenever a state building is constructed and the distance they are to be transported is not too great. An additional check for the care of state prisoners was recommended for the Wales institution and also that a doctor's residence be built at a cost of about $4,000.

Recommendations State Control.
There is a long discussion over the industrial school for girls at Milwaukee. The committee recommends that the board of control be given full management of the school and that stock at the Green Bay reformatory, the committee recommends an appropriation of $5,000 to complete the central administration building. The committee also recommends that $5,000 for a water reservoir be appropriated to be used whenever a state building is constructed and the distance they are to be transported is not too great. An additional check for the care of state prisoners was recommended for the Wales institution and also that a doctor's residence be built at a cost of about $4,000.

The committee reports that the livestock owned by the reformatory and state institutions comes mostly of blooded stock and practically furnishes all of the dairy products used by the institutions. The report of the committee is signed by all of the legislative investigating committee, which was composed of Senator W. W. Albers, Vauclau, chairman; Assemblyman Carl Kuntzacker, La Crosse, secretary; Senator Henry Rollman, Calumet, court reporter; Assemblyman Frank B. Metcalfe, Milwaukee, and Assemblyman Charles Lentz, Marquette.

ANTI-TIPPING BILLLawmakers Convinced of Value of Legislature Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Madison, April 29.—The senate today voted to override the governor's veto of the Bossard anti-tipping bill, passing it for a second time by a vote of 20 to 10. It required a two-thirds vote of the number present. Many of the governor's most loyal supporters in the senate were compelled by their convictions on the subject to vote against recommendation contained in the veto message.

The senate passed the Arnold home rule amendment resolution by a vote of 22 to 8, and the bill obviating the necessity of political candidacy. The amendment to allow the governor to disburse money for forest fire protection in forest reserve when ever necessary arises, the Tompkins bill over which the senate has been at loggerheads for two weeks, passed today.

The legislature today invited former President Taft to address it in a joint session when he comes to Madison next week. Cities may appoint police women by the terms of the Monk bill, which passed the senate by a majority. This bill, that of consolidating agricultural boards and activities was engrossed by the assembly 81 to 9, and the same action was taken on the bill for one day's rest in seven for all employees except milkmen, janitors and watchmen.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, April 29.—A business session, largely technical, completed the work of the annual convention of the cotton manufacturers today. A paper by Arthur H. Gulliver, of New York, dealt with problems in the textile industry emphasized by the European war.

"Very necessary," said Mr. Gulliver, "for us to consider with the utmost care the change in methods of doing business that have been brought to our attention by the European commercial results from the war. It may be useless for us to try to compete with a nation that has made discoveries and experiments, and has spared no expense in providing results from the war. It may be possible for us in a number of ways to give them some competition."

Dr. Warren said, 'by overcoming the natural opposition of parents by enlisting the sense of ministers who would care for their parents and by challenging the young man of executive gifts as well as faith and courage who needs a modest pension as well as a subsistence wage to justify committing his wife and children as well as his own life to the service of the church.'"

EXCUSE ROOSEVELT

ten by Whitman to Duell of
New York.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Syracuse, April 29.—Colonel Roosevelt was excused from the stand this morning shortly after a letter was produced by his counsel from Governor Chas. Whitman, then district attorney of New York, in which Whitman told Charles H. Duell of New York that "the time is ripe" for all progressive republicans and members of the progressive party to rid the state of party control which is responsible for corrupt conditions.

The letter was written in 1914 and the then district attorney wrote that the "mor and the policies are responsible for the corrupt conditions" were not confined to any one party. Mr. Barnee's name was not mentioned in the letter, but the Colonel in reply to questions said he understood the reference was made to him. The letter was introduced at the end of re-direct examination.

WHITTET SPEEDS UP
HOUSE COMMITTEESTakes Direct Charge of Committee
Work in Effort to Have All Bills
Reported Within Two Weeks.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., April 29.—Speaker Whittet has taken direct charge of the committee work and is making an effort to have all bills reported to the house within two weeks. So many bills were pending before the assembly committee on judiciary that the committee has been definitely settled by the assembly. Speaker Whittet, chairman of the committee on judiciary, said today that the committee will work on these bills next week.

The state affairs committee has practically concluded its hearings and under directions from Speaker Whittet every bill in the committee of the assembly will be noticed for hearing next week. This is the first indication of the final clearing up. Speaker Whittet will make an effort to rush the consolidation bills, for until that program has been definitely settled, the finance committee will be unable to determine on the amounts necessary to support the government for the next two years. All of the members have agreed to expedite their work during the latter part of May. Some are even more optimistic. When Assemblyman Grell attempted to lay over several bills collected today, Assemblyman Fisher objected, saying that he believed the legislature would be adjourned and home before that date.

hurrying from all directions to take cover from what they evidently thought was a bomb. That it bounded

War News Summary.

Turkish and British reports of the land operations in the Dardanelles region again are in direct conflict. From the Turkish version it will appear that the Anglo-French invasion has resulted in disaster for the allies. Further claims to victories are made in official report at Constantinople. It is said the forces which landed at Kaba Tepeh were forced back along the whole front with heavy losses.

British official reports give no mention of the feat. The latest statement from London says the land forces succeeded in establishing the line across the Gallipoli Peninsula on the European side of the strait and are advancing steadily. An unofficial dispatch from Athens states that the allies were victorious in a battle on the west side of the peninsula, inflicting serious losses on the Turks and capturing one battalion. Field Marshal John French, British commander, has announced that the German advance has been checked definitely.

In the Russian campaign new battles are developing in the north along the East Prussian border. Petrograd dispatches speak of various indecisive encounters, but make no mention of the victory along a twelve mile front which the German war office announced yesterday. Neither has it conceded the reported Austrian victory in Bukovina.

A Berlin news agency announces that the Austro-Italian negotiations are proceeding toward a satisfactory adjustment and that the most important points have been settled. Rome advices, however, say Italy is unyielding.

This information, while unofficial, is gathered from men who have made a close and careful study of the situation. The agreement is for a concerted military action: an understanding concerning the territory to be awarded Italy in the event of victory, and a provision that Italy shall join the triple entente after the war.

Berlin, (via wireless) April 29.—"All attacks against the German positions on the west bank of the canal north of Ypres failed."

"The number of cannon of the enemy captured by the Germans was increased to 63."

"Southwest of Verdun the German positions were advanced one hundred yards. Captured French soldiers confess they were in great fear, having been told by their officers that the Germans shot all prisoners."

"South of Kalvarya, in Russian Poland, the Germans occupied the village of Kovale and the heights a short distance south of Dachevo. South of Sochaczew the Germans conquered a Russian point of support."

No Sign of Yielding.
London, April 29.—French and Belgian artillery is daily battering away at the German bridge head at Steenstrate, but there is no claim of substantial gains by either side. At the same time the British show no disposition to abandon their attempt to force the Germans to yield the ground gained by them up to the present time. There is no confirmation that they have even reached St. Eloi.

In the expectation that the Germans will continue to use poisonous gases, the women of England are working valiantly to supply simple respirators for men in the field and thousands will soon be sent to the front. A public subscription is being taken for these respirators.

French Aid Belgians.
Paris, April 29.—The French war office has sent a report as follows: "In Belgium we have continued to progress in conjunction with Belgian troops in a northerly direction. On the right bank of the Yser canal we took 150 prisoners as well as two machine guns."

"The enemy has been bombed by means of flying machines and incendiary shells, the open town of Epernay, occupied exclusively at that time by hospital detachments."

"Definite information which has come to hand sets forth that the Zepplin airship which eight days ago threw three incendiary bombs seriously damaged by our artillery finding it impossible to navigate further, the machine was wrecked in the trees between Bruges and Ghent."

Berlin, wireless to Seattle, April 29.—Wilhelm Scheffmann, well known German war correspondent, sent the following report to his papers:

"When I compare the German general staff report with that of the British, there is an irreconcilable difference. In my trips along the front by Neuve Chapelle and Givency, I have traveled through all of the time in the rural territory and towns, which according to reports published in English newspapers are in possession of the British troops, but in reality I did not see a single Englishman on the road, not even a private soldier."

"In one village every house was flying the Bavarian flag, made by tearing the superfluous stripes from the French flag."

Fierce Battle Continues.
London, April 29.—There has been given out in the Belgian military headquarters an official report on the progress of hostilities which reads:

"Several of our tanks, such as Ramscapelle, Perizze, Lampere and Osleperen have been repeatedly bombed. The Belgian artillery has vigorously co-operated with the French in their attack against Steenstrate. Our aviators have shown great activity."

LOCAL FAIR STOCK WILL BE ON MARKET

A NUMBER OF SHARES TO BE DISPOSED OF WITHIN NEXT FEW WEEKS.—EXCEPT LITTLE TROUBLE.

PREMIUM LIST MAY 1

Contains Seven Hundred More Prizes Than in 1914.—Tracks Now in Excellent Condition.

A tour of Janesville and Rock county to dispose of a number of remaining shares of the Janesville Fair association stock, will be taken by Secretary Harry Nowlan and John Soultan of the board of breeders within a few days. Especial attention will be given to the attempt to get the stock in the hands of farmers. It will sell at one hundred dollars per share and it is felt by members of the board of directors that little or no trouble will be experienced in disposing of the remaining shares.

The present indifference of the fair association amounts to several thousand dollars and a fair amount of this could be wiped out with the disposition of unsold stock.

Promised advertising for the premium list, which for some unknown reason has been held back by a number of men and firms who promised their copy on an early date, has necessarily delayed the action in printing the premium lists which now will not be ready for distribution until May 15. Members of the committee in charge of this particular matter have announced today that all advertising copy should be in their hands by May 5, to permit a period of ten days to complete the book in printing and binding shops. The books will then be ready for mailing. A large list is now being compiled.

With a list of exactly seven hundred more prizes than last year, it seems quite indicative that exhibitors will be well awarded for their premium showings. The number has outgrown all expectations of the board. At the opening fair of 1914 there were approximately 557 prizes awarded. This year there will be over 1,600. Furthermore, the aggregate value of the list this year is estimated to be at least twenty-five percent in excess of 1914.

It was mentioned some time ago that expectations were that the stock exhibit this year would rival the exhibition of the Janesville fair, and from large numbers of stock breeders of divers kinds throughout this section of the county, to Dr. W. A. Munn, president of the association, many breeders with national reputation have promised their exhibits, which will not only be interesting to the farmer who prizes himself on blue ribbon winners, but to the youngsters from the country for whom the fair board has arranged a special stock judging contest. These well-bred cattle also have much interest for hundreds of city people who love to wander through the pens, even though they know nothing of the finer points of the various breeds. The exhibits of horses, cattle, swine and sheep and chickens will be large this year. The 1914 exhibits were excellent, but they will be outclassed with the number and grades to be shown this year.

The foot and mouth disease proved a handicap last year. Breeders were taking no chances of their stock contracting the disease and as a result, these well-bred cattle, which were fair as a whole in this section where the fever was prevalent, did not do much exhibiting. But now, with the epidemic under control, and little danger of its presence, the holding back from exhibiting last year is only going to be an impetus for stockmen to be far more anxious to show their finer breeds this fall.

Improvements at Grounds. Busy preparations are under way at the driving park grounds at the present time. The big tract is being cleared and leveled in tip-top shape. Fences and buildings are being repaired and a little landscape gardening is also being done.

Arrangements for the prevention of peanut shucks, candy boxes, etc., accumulating behind and under the seats in the grandstand, are being made. The sloping floor has been repaired in such a manner that this refuse will when tramped, find its way, through gravity, to a big compartment the entire length of the building at the end toward the race tracks. The stand has also been altered for water to permit attaching and easily clean the structure by the use of the hose.

A new ticket office has been built near the Milwaukee avenue entrance and along the lane, which formerly led up to the automobile gate at fair time, will be assembled the agricultural implements exhibit. The secretary's office has been moved west of its old location and is now near the new stock barns.

The roads and driveways in the park have been centered and repaired and placed in the best of condition. A number of new trees have also been planted.

The track is in as good condition now as during the time that Janesville was the mecca of the racing world of the middle west. Both the mile and the half mile speedways are in beautiful shape. Already there is a crowd of twenty-two and a half and thirty horses at the stables for summer training. Speaking several days ago regarding the courses, one of the breeders said: "I have no doubt that there is another course in the United States as good as a condition as this one here in Janesville. I have driven on a great many tracks, but have never seen one that continues to hold up as the one here. You should have great racing this fall as the track can only continue to improve."

In the fall and winter you are very apt to catch cold and develop a cough; be prevented by having a bottle of "Allen's Cough Remedy" on hand. It is a sure cure for all coughs and colds and you will not make a mistake.

ORDER DOG LICENSE TAGS TO BE USED THIS YEAR
City Clerk J. P. Hammarlund ordered eight hundred dog license tags to be used during the coming year, from June first when the new licenses will have to be furnished. Last year 778 tags were sold at prices of two and four dollars and over one hundred dogs were shot by the police department. The license of a dog is a different design and the ordinance will be amended to charge a small fee for the obtaining of a duplicate license when the original tag is lost or stolen. This is a new feature that has been found in the present ordinance.

The police before June first will seek to enforce the license ordinance and force delinquent buyers to purchase tags. The 1914 and 1915 tags or prosecutions will be made.

EXPERIENCE TEACHES PEOPLE CIVIC PRIDE

Janesville Must Take Cleaning Up Lessons Next Week and Beautify City.

Janesville will attempt to clean-up next Monday and Tuesday, and to do this, lessons as to how to proceed must be given and taken. The average American city is just like the average American child. It has to take lessons in the bitter school of experience. The city does not seem to understand until it grows up, and by that time habits have been formed which are hard to correct.

In no other field is this statement more applicable than in the one of civic pride. Even though ordinances have been passed by the city council and our present commission, the city has always done certain things, and that is a presumed reason it should always do them.

This "clean-up" and "paint-up" campaign of next week Monday and Tuesday, is an effort on the part of "The City Beautiful" boosters to remove the unsightly and unsanitary accumulations of winter. But, then, why should the unsightly and unsanitary, grim-breeding, filthy, stenching, outside-breeding be permitted to exist in the very heart of the business district. Or, why should paste-board boxes and other debris be thrown in the river. Of course, what don't sink down the river, and becomes a menace to health somewhere else. Someone has said that within the city limits, between the dam and the lower bridge, there is at least one sewer pouring their filth into the river.

Who is to blame? Certainly not the present administration. These things have come with slow progress. But we mention some of the things which are prompting this civic pride, clean-up and paint-up campaign.

One other thing, Janesville has many vacant alleys and some vacant lots in the heart of the business district. Why are these places permitted to accumulate such unsightly and unsanitary mass of rubbish, ashes and other sweepings?

It is natural for visitors to size up a town by appearances. A dirty, rusty town appeals to nobody. We must then clean up Janesville from such unsightliness and unsanitary conditions as will cause people to think we are on the down grade. With the municipal authorities repairing and cleaning the streets, working out the problems of outside closets, filthy private alleys and vacant lots, and open sewer connections, and with individuals cleaning up their own premises, the city can count upon commanding the admiration of the many thousands who visit the city.

In appealing to the public for hearty cooperation in cleaning up our own premises, street and alley, we are attempting to reach you on the merits of a spick and span city. Better health, fewer fires, a clean city, and everybody working in unity is our slogan.

Appearance and first impression count for much.

Two Drunks Sentenced in Municipal Court

Tom Kehoe, an old offender, drew ninety days for being drunk and disorderly last night, and was sentenced to second offense drunkenness before Judge Maxfield this morning. Besides the long term, Kehoe was ordered to take the pledge for a period of one year. Abusive and profane language was the cause of Kehoe's arrest.

Russell Johnson, a transient from Philadelphia, was given ten days for being intoxicated last night.

William Richardson of Beloit, was brought to the Rock county jail last evening to serve a fifteen day term for intoxication.

DR. R. H. STETSON DIES IN ROSWELL, NEW MEXICO

Word has been received in this city of the death of Dr. R. H. Stetson on April 27th, at his home in Roswell, New Mexico. Dr. Stetson practiced medicine in Rock county for a number of years and was held in high esteem by the physicians of this community and his friends in Janesville.

Robert Henry Stetson was born in Chautauque county, New York, July 18th, 1842, and came to Wisconsin in 1845. He studied medicine at Ann Arbor and was graduated from the Bennett Medical college in 1878, and practiced as an electric physician in Rock county for nearly thirty years, before going to New Mexico.

COMEDY PLAYS TO A PACKED HOUSE

La Salle Musical Stock Company Put on Finished Performance of "Miss Nobody From Starland"

The La Salle Musical Stock company grew in favor from their first performance in Janesville until last night when a packed house greeted their performance of "Miss Nobody From Starland," one of the La Salle theatre's late successes.

"Miss Nobody From Starland" is a musical comedy pure and simple. The plot is light, but the lines are full of clean, crisp comedy, while the songs and dances are exceptionally good. Guy Voyer, the leading favorite of the company, was seen as Preston Halliday, and the part gave him ample scope as a comedian. Mr. Voyer was ably assisted by Eileen Morrison as Sylvia Patterson, Joe Woods as William Pierce, and Fred Vance as Harold Patterson.

The songs were mostly rendered by Mr. Voyer and Miss Patterson. The chorus appeared to advantage in the ensemble numbers. The scenic effects were far superior to many seen here earlier in the season and carried by higher priced attractions.

It is possible that a return engagement will be booked with the La Salle Musical Stock company. If this is brought about they will receive a royal welcome on their return.

HELD JOINT MEETING AT BELOIT TUESDAY

Rock County Medical and Dental Societies Hear Fine Talks by Drs. Holsapple, Andrews and Thorne.

A large attendance of county doctors and dentists attended a joint meeting of the Rock County Medical and Dental societies at Beloit on Tuesday evening. Every town and community was represented and it is estimated that eighty men were present.

The program consisted of three talks, two of them given by Janesville representatives at the meeting. Dr. Ira M. Holsapple delivered an unusually interesting discourse on "Some of the Systemic Effects of Pyrexia." This subject was handled carefully, and just how disease is spread from the mouth and teeth to the other parts of the human body was most definitely emphasized. Dr. J. P. Thorne gave an address on "Treatment of Glaucoma," while Dr. M. P. Andrews of Beloit presented the other address on "Symptomatic Reflexes of the Head."

WANT PARK TO SHOW AUTO SPEED TRIALS

Elgin Company of Speed King Backers Desire Permit for Races Here Memorial Day.

Janeville auto speed bugs may have an opportunity to see a number of class speed trials and incidentally some clever driving over the mile dirt track at the Driving Park. In a letter to Secretary Harry Nowlan of the Janeville fair board, the American Motorcade company of Elgin has stated a desire to secure the grounds on Memorial Day with the idea of staging a number of speed races. The Elgin people have a string of speed cars and a long list of well known drivers and their mechanics. Throughout the winter they have been working the circuits in the south and from all indications they have been giving some good exhibitions. With the advent of spring they are working northward and may be able to make arrangements with Secretary Nowlan regarding the use of the track and grounds on the day in question.

Due to the fact that the letter was more or less indefinite and failed to state the number of cars, drivers, races, the price of admission to be charged by the promoters, etc., Secretary Nowlan was undecided yesterday as to the advisability of inquiring into the project.

He is of the opinion, however, that the racing cars would have little or no deteriorating effects on the track, as the mile course is used, and at fair time the greater majority of the horse speed trials are run on the half mile circuit.

With the present improvements and the grandstand capable of seating 2,200, it is thought by many that the speed trials would be a great drawing card here on Memorial Day. The mile course is hard as flint now and in excellent condition for fast automobile driving.

FOURNIER'S HITS PUTS SOX GAME ON ICE 7 TO 3

Chicago, April 28.—Chicago went into third place in the American league yesterday when they trimmed the Cleveland Indians 7 to 3, making it seven straight for the Comiskey's. Yesterday the Sox had the fielding, hitting, baserunning and pitching by Butcher Boy Benz. Steen opposed Benz and was nipped for two tallies in the opener and then exploded in the fourth. Williams went to the mound with the bases full in the fifth, and then Fournier walloped a double, scoring three, making a total of seven.

Cubs Beat Reds. Cincinnati, April 28.—Thirteen Cubs were used in beating the Cincinnati Reds by a score of 9 to 8 yesterday. Both teams got sixteen hits. Vaughn went to the mound with the game a tie and brought home the bacon with a hit and two left on bases.

Chappell Released. Chicago, April 28.—Larry Chappell, White Sox outfielder, was released yesterday to the Milwaukee association team, whence he came to the Sox. He was released under optional agreement. Chappell came to the Sox in 1913 for the exchange of two players and cash, the value being eighteen thousand dollars. He fell down on his hitting and base running, and there was no room for Larry on the Sox club.

Catcher Jimmy Stephens, formerly of the Browns, is now catching for the Cubs. He started his baseball career in Texas.

CLABBY OUTPOINTED BY OLD RIVAL CHIP

Fast Battle at Marinette Goes to Chip by Popular Decision.—Brown Fights Draw.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Marinette, Wis., April 28.—Jimmie Clabby's cleverness in the early rounds was not enough to save him from being outpointed by George Chip in a fast ten round boxing contest here on Wednesday night. Clabby won the first and second, the third and fourth were even, the fifth was won by Chip. The sixth was even and the seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth all went to Chip. Neither man was damaged much during the bout, but both were wearying out. In the tenth round Clabby tried for a knockout, but failed to land on Clabby's jaw. All during the bout Clabby proved himself master at boxing and long range work, but he was clearly outclassed in fighting.

Clabby came back strong in the ninth and for a time made Chip look like a preliminary man by his footwork and clever ducking. He drew, however, and at the end of the round was wearing out. In the tenth round Clabby tried for a knockout, but failed to land on Clabby's jaw. All during the bout Clabby proved himself master at boxing and long range work, but he was clearly outclassed in fighting.

Draw at Platteville. Platteville, Wis., April 28.—Billy Miske of St. Paul and Greek K. O. Brown fought a fast ten round bout to a draw here on Wednesday night before a big house. Miske was the cleverer of the pair, but Brown carried the fight to him all the time. In the semi-windup, Battling Johnson of Dubuque knocked out Walter Burke in the first round.

Sport Snap Shots

MORRIS MILLER

Al Reich, who meets Jim Coffey at Madison Square Garden on the night of May 5, will be well trained for this battle if time, money and skill of some of the best tutors can accomplish anything. Reich, now Maxey Blumenthal, Reich's manager is figuring on coming out a loser on the fight from a financial standpoint because of the money he is paying out to sparring partners in order to get Reich right for the battle. Willie Lewis, trainer of some of the greatest men that ever stepped into a ring is busy with the big fellow now grooming him for the contest. Trainers, rubbers, runners and a retinue of attendants are eating and living at Blumenthal's expense, and if the fight draws $20,000 Maxey will still be on the short end.

Whether the Atlantic leagues live or dies, Owner Carlos Henriquez of the Long Branch team should worry since he has booked exhibitions with practically all the major league teams for the summer. Henriquez has kept his team, made up of Cubans, practically intact, and doubts about the Atlantic league's fate have not been allowed to interfere with his plans.

Dummy Taylor, the former big league pitcher, wants to be an umpire in the Central league. He says he is confident he can use signs by which both players and spectators will know his decisions and, as to the announcer's duties, such as giving the names of batters and changes in players, he will, if necessary, carry an assistant at his own expense for the purpose. President Louis Heilbroner believes the deal mute veteran is a capable man for the position and if he can overcome the existing difficulties, he should be given a chance to make good. Taylor was for many years with the New York Giants and has a record of nineteen straight seasons in professional baseball.

Attacks of appendicitis sustained by Harvard athletes during the present year are giving Harvard physicians plenty of food for thought. The fact that all three crimson football captains of the 1914 season have had their appendices removed since the beginning of the season leads to the belief that strenuous athletic exercise may have something to do with making the men peculiarly susceptible to such attacks.

The two leading pitchers of the North Carolina association last season were Ledbetter and Ray. The former riddled with Detroit, but Ray, who led the league in strikeouts, shut-outs and victories and was the hardest working hurler in the circuit, failed to go any higher than Birmingham in the Southern association. The reason was that Mr. Ray for all of his effectiveness, lacked control, passing 199 batters and hitting 31 men, which is some record for fifty games.

Clarence Rowland, new manager of the Chicago White Sox, is of the usually succeeds. Hugh Jennings is cast after that mold; so is Clark Griffith, so is Bill Carrigan. Jennings and Griffith are noisier than Rowland, but members of the Chicago team aver that no one fights for victories harder than this man from Peoria—and no one "crabs" less in defeat.

How could a more pronounced feeling be shown that horse racing is a popular sport than the attendance at the tracks at the early spring meetings? These indications point to an exceptional year for racing everywhere. There is a general interest in the rival of the thoroughbred for economic reasons. Many of those who have pooped the idea of the horse being of greater use than that of wagon pulling have revised their ideas and are now convinced that the thoroughbred was not improved from racing alone, but as the foundation for a breed of horses that have proved of inestimable value to the world at large.

Ever since the Real Tobacco Chew first came out its fame has been spreading from one town to another.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW IS NOW CUT TWO WAYS!! W-B CUT IS LONG SHRED, RIGHT-CUT IS SHORT SHRED!!

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is the Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end. The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

66 Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste. 66

SOME OF ROWLAND'S IDEAS ON BASEBALL.

Clarence Rowland, manager of the White Sox, has the following remarks to make on baseball:

Never take money from a ball player.

The greatest player today is Eddie Collins.

The player is as important as the manager.

The only player I ever fined was Vin Campbell.

I never fine a ball player, but show him his wrong.

The closing hour for my players is 11:30 o'clock.

Be a friend of the newspaper boys. They can help you.

Put 'em together; don't spread 'em apart if you want to win.

Give the kids a chance, and don't rely too much on the broken-down stars.

I love a fighter and an aggressive player, but I won't tolerate rowdiness.

There's not much difference in managing a major league club and a minor league club.

I never predict a pennant.

Pennants are won in the ball field and not through the press.

FACTORY BOSS GIVES BUNNY BRIEF HIS NAME.

Answering a question regarding the nationality of Bunny Brief of the White Sox recently it was stated on a French-Canadian. A fan from his home town makes the correction that this story is furnished of how he comes by the name of Brief.

Bunny's right name, according to a friend from his home town, Traverse, City, is Tony Gretkowski—as near as it can be spelled in the American lingo. The "Brief" story is rather interesting. When one of Bunny's brothers went to work in a Traverse City factory a few years ago he sprung the Gretkowski stuff on an unsuspecting employer. The employer commented, "Too much," and turning to the timekeeper, said, "make it brief." And it has been Brief since that day.

All the youngsters in the family fell into and accepted the new moniker.

Brief is known as Chi by many of his friends at Traverse City. As a kid he used to say that some day he would play ball for Chicago when he grew up. Hence that nickname.

CAUSTIC AGAIN.

The Wall Street Journal has become caustic again in its remarks on the aggregates of individualism as portrayed in the present war. It says: "Every experienced newspaper man knows that the sum of all the people who write it, greater than his business department, or even his proprietor, it develops a composite soul of its own, and it is essential to be remembered that the people who produce it are individualists to a man. The aggregates of individualism, in fact, are greater than the sum of the units."

"Without explicitly saying so, this point in the larger matter of nations is well brought out by Morison Freeman, in his illuminating letter to the New York Sun of April 21. He points out that the national weakness of absolutism is that the nation is worse than its component parts. So far from the methods of the drill sergeant creating a perfect state, they show how extremes meet, in creating out of a great body of atrocious individuals the morals of a mob."

"All the people of the United States, as represented by that public opinion which is their sober second thought, are greater than the sum of the units. According to the autocratic method, the people governed are not responsible for the government. But according to the English and American theory, the individual conscience accepts responsibility for a government, and the aggregate establishes a capital fund of conscience, which is represented in the principle of government by consent of the governed."

"However we might feel about the common enemy if we were at war, American public opinion could not be hypnotized into condoning, to say nothing of praising, the satisfaction and triumph, acts of 'frivolousness' with or without military value. Anybody who remembers the international expeditionary force in the Boxer uprising will realize the distinction as applied to actual conduct in the field. He will remember the unvarnished comments of the responsible American officers, upon the treatment of harmless Chinese civilians by the Germans, and the English and American shown by the British contingent, with an instinctive appreciation of the American view in such a matter."

"This was not a mere matter of difference in military discipline. It was that inherited love of freedom, with the acceptance of the responsibilities that go with it, which is the glory of the English-speaking races. It is the aggregate force of conscientious individualism, as opposed to the irresponsible breed of remorseless discipline without moral force behind it."

THE YODLERS MISSING.

According to press dispatches the time-honored "diplomatic room" of the state department, where distinguished secretaries of state and noted foreign diplomats have met for more than a century and where have taken place conferences of vital importance in the history of this nation, there was given recently a show such as that venerable apartment never saw before.

It was a moving picture entertainment for certain friends of Secretary Bryan and in which Mr. Bryan was the whole show. The films depicted Mr. Wilson's secretary of state not in the performance of his official duties—it would be difficult for even a moving picture machine to secure such a picture—but views of him on the lecture platform. Why the Tyrolean yodlers were not also shown is not explained. Their act immediately preceded that of Mr. Bryan in the chautauqua circuit.

Former President William Howard Taft is to pay Wisconsin a visit next week and he two days at Madison. As time goes on Judge Taft will be considered more and more one of the most constructive presidents we have had. The victim of circumstance he was defeated by a blatherkite tongue and the influence he had with an element of the republican party, and was retired to private life just at a time when the United States needed cool, conservative men at the helm of affairs and not theorists and chautauqua tongue jugglers.

Germany did not wait for Lord Kitchener to begin his spring "drive," and anticipated the English general's idea of pouring troops into France and Belgium by making a few attacks of their own. The stoppage of the Russian campaign came just at a good time to release thousands of tried German troops for service on the western front, and with Germany's unexcelled railway facilities the fighting began with a vim that betokens further advances before Kitchener is ready to hurl his new army into the fore front of the battle line.

The dog poisoner is at work again.

Nine pet canines have met their fate within the past few days, and it is time to call a halt upon this cruelty to the poor, dumb brutes that are man's best friend. The person who is poisoning meat or food of any material where a dog might get it and eat it, suffering untold agony, is one of the most contemptible creatures imaginable. It is to be hoped that the guilty party can be discovered and punished as the law has rigid requirements in such cases and prosecution and publicity would be too little penalty to inflict.

It would appear that it must be some sport to snout out the allies from their trenches by "sink pots" and then shoot the poor, unfortunate men as they seek to escape the fumes that are blinding them, like rabbits driven from their warren by a ferret. In civilized countries even the rabbit is given a chance to have his life by law enactment and even now the legislation conceiving the idea of protecting the peasant and perhaps the woodchuck, but over in Europe human life is held even cheaper than the beasts of our fields.

Now that a remedy is given for cleaning out one of the South Janesville "joints" why do not some courageous citizens of the township complain to the proper officials and see that the license is revoked and the place shut up and kept shut? If they do not take advantage of this opportunity then there should be no complaint as to their future behavior.

Evidently by continuing the cases of the three Rockford women who were arrested here for alleged shoplifting, it is hoped to have them escape with a small fine or actually have their cases dismissed for lack of prosecution. This is all right, but how about sentencing a man for a first offense drunkenness for ninety days and letting those alleged thieves off?

Oiling of the Janesville streets will start in a few days now. Many of the thoroughfares cared for with the oil preparation in the past two years have actually taken on the form of genuine asphalt streets and all they need is a careful sweeping and care during the summer. The oil on macadam streets has been most successful and the great advantage comes in preserving the surface and bed of the streets by its frequent use.

Now that the Y. M. C. A. matters

have been thoroughly aired, why not forget past differences, put your shoulder to the wheel and help matters along. The scope of the Young Men's Christian association is so wide that it includes young and old and all can be benefited by being either an active or associate member of the organization which is a particular Janesville institution.

The anti-administration press

correspondents, and they represent almost every big news-gathering syndicate located at Madison, are sending out most discouraging reports as to the progress the Janesville is making in handling matters of importance before them. It is unfortunate that time reports can not be received from Madison without being garbled by the university anti-administration lobby.

Navigation on Rock river, while not formally opened, shows evidence of being unusually popular this coming summer. It is unfortunate that a first-class park can not be conducted on the river where it would be a pleasure to spend a few hours these glorious spring days with an easy means of getting back and forth. It would seem that a public recreation park would really pay.

What has become of our Twenty-five Thousand club? It was a most flourishing organization when in existence and had some money in the treasury. What has become of the officials that they do not call a meeting and either arrange to continue the good work begun or make some use of the few hundred dollars on hand for public good.

They are still fighting down in Mexico and from the present outlook they will continue to do so for some years to come unless there is a general understanding for peace. Villa appears to be losing ground and Carranza, sabbing, while Zapata is holding his own down in the lower end of the most disturbed republic.

Just why every business man interested in the future growth and prosperity of the city should not become affiliated with the Commercial club is hard to understand. It means much to the future of the city and its benefits are manifold. If not already a member get in line and become a Janesville booster.

This is the first touch of genuine spring fever weather to arrive, and the lure of the river for the fishermen, or the golf links for the chaser of the "putt" is so entrancing that it is no wonder one wishes the vacation period came now and lasted all summer.

Rock county is to have some fairs

this year if it has nothing else. With the Rock county fair at Evansville, the big Janesville fair here and the Winnebago county fair at Beloit, there will be plenty of amusement and entertainment during the last weeks or August to say the least.

Lots of them have "them" off and lots more wish they had. But those who have taken "them" off may wish they had "them" on if the moon changes and a cold wave arrives per schedule. However, in a dry spell you can never count on signs.

If instead of placing more laws on the state statutes some of the present ones were enforced it would be a good thing. There are lots of violations of the law going on day after day, without any one being found guilty or being called to account for them.

The next holiday is Decoration day and that is thirty days off. It is never summer until after that date so do not be too certain that warm weather is here to stay yet by any means.

If a censorship over women's fashions is ever established by the men, the fair ones might come back with a law to prohibit men from wearing: Passionate neckties. Silk socks. Coquettish bows on back of fuzzy green hats. Pivotal cuffs at bottom of trousers. Coy monodies for goo-goo eyes. Undraped canes. Nude brows extending beyond apex of dome. Bright heels. Exclamatory plaid capes. Porcupine pompadours. Eyebrow mustaches.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

New York and Chicago's big success, "Help Wanted" written by Jack Lait, the well-known Chicago newspaperman, who has turned author with wonderful success, comes to the Myers Theatre on Thursday, May 4, with the reputation of having ran for 39 weeks at the Cort Theatre in Chicago. The length of this run is sufficient to draw the attention of the local theatregoers, but so much has been heard about the theme of the piece that indications point to the banner audience of the season. Press agents don't have to become active when a success reaches this city; the local theatregoers know a success without the assistance of the press agent's ambitions. "Help Wanted" is one of the shows that have been awaited, and now it will positively appear, the theatregoers are satisfied. The story tells of a poor, very young, pretty and unsophisticated stenographer, whose employer, deliberately plans her ruin. A series of calamities follow that are none other than a story torn from the book of every stenographer who faces such a situation. There is dramatic vitality in the situations that command more attention than "Within the Law."

It is impossible, at this late date, to say very much about Nimrod, either as to when he lived or what he did. The "mighty hunter before the Lord" may have been a historical character, but at any rate we know very little of him. All that we know of him is found in the tenth chapter of Genesis.

JURY IS DISMISSED WITHOUT A VERDICT IN PERJURY TRIAL

After Six Hours of Deliberation Jury Unable to Reach Verdict in Case Against Ernest Frank.

The twelve man jury after six hours' deliberation were unable to reach a unanimous agreement in the perjury case against Ernest Frank in the municipal court yesterday. The jury was composed of J. L. Maxfield, at eleven o'clock last night, with the vote standing 11 to 1 in favor of the defendant. It is understood that the first ballot stood ten to two for acquittal and one of the jurors so persistently held out for conviction during the long hours, that no ballots were taken from seven o'clock until ten.

Judge Maxfield has taken no action to bring about a new trial or to dismiss the complaint against the Milwaukee functionary, and awaits a conference between District Attorney Dunwiddie and W. H. Dougherty, defending attorney, tomorrow, as Dunwiddie is in Beloit prosecuting a criminal case.

The disagreement of the jury is really a victory for the defense, for although there was a preponderance of evidence against the defendant, Attorney Dougherty turned the tide when he placed the defendant on the stand and made him subject to close questioning for nearly two hours. This was followed by a cross examination by the district attorney who was unable to shake Frank from his testimony, that he had seen C. T. Hudson and F. W. Bowers obtain liquor at the Morgan house, and another man whom he thought was McCulloch.

It was proven by the state that McCulloch was not in the Junction, but the alibi given by Bowers and Hudson was not strong enough for the jury to believe. In the arguments Attorney Dougherty gave a fiery address, alleging that advance information has been furnished through the defense that people knew that an examination was to be held before Constable W. for Dunwiddie to the Junction to serve the papers. It was no secret with the defense that a "blind pig" was conducted at the Morgan house by William Williams and the liquor was obtained on several occasions by Frank, who is a minor. The state's witnesses came in for a "calling" on their testimony against Frank and on by one of the jury members, while the argument grew more intense and biting.

Dunwiddie presented the evidence that was furnished by the implicated men in a clear-cut fashion and enlarged upon the changed testimony and mistakes proven by Frank in his testimony in the John Doe hearing.

What further action will be taken if the case is dismissed is not known. If Frank is acquitted there is ground for the arrest of several of the state's witnesses.

Also hear of further investigation against William Williams, selling liquor in prohibition territory.

Hot Point Week May 3 to 8.

BROTHER LOSES LIFE SERVING VATERLAND

William Priebe of This City Receives Word of Kinsman's Death in February Last.

William Priebe of this city has received word of the death of his brother, Emil Priebe, a soldier in the German army, in the Carpathian mountains, and formerly a resident of Wisconsin. He was wounded on January 27 last, and died on February 11. He has a sister, Mrs. Priebe, of Janesville, and another sister, Mrs. William Lindeman, in Beloit. A cousin, William Priebe, resides on rural route No. 5 out of Janesville.

Young Priebe, who was but twenty-two years of age, came to America in 1911 and attended Hoffman's college in Milwaukee for some time, advancing in his studies of the English language with remarkable rapidity.

Later he went to Beloit where he joined the Fraternal Order of Eagles, No. 1018 he decided to return to Germany and to serve in the army. When war broke out last year he was first sent to East Prussia and later to the Carpathians where he was fatally wounded.

Emil Priebe, 33 years old, lives in Germany, and his other brothers are serving in the army.

SECOND FARM FIRE LOSS WITHIN WEEK DOES $5,000 DAMAGE

Suspicious Blaze on Henry Yale Farm Near Milton Consumes Buildings Last Evening.

Another suspicious farm fire, the second within a week, caused a loss of approximately $5,000 on the farm of Henry Yale, living near Milton, about eight or nine miles north of Janesville.

Two large barns, a large stack of straw, the silo and windmill and a barnyard shed together with practically the entire farm machinery were consumed by the flames. The farm house escaped destruction in the conflagration due to the fact that the strong wind was blowing in the opposite direction to the residence.

The blaze was first discovered about 9:30 o'clock. Hastily summoned aid fought valiantly to quench the flames, but the fire was too great a start, however, and the work was in vain.

When the blaze was first discovered occupants of the farm removed a large number of cattle and horses from the barns. The property was partially covered by insurance.

Members of the Yale family suspect incendiaryism. They at once began investigation of the affair last night. An inmate of the county poor farm was first suspected and a telephone call to Superintendent Whipple gave the information that the person was on the farm and had been there throughout the day. To make sure of the statement some of the Yales drove to the county farm at midnight to assure themselves that the man was there as Superintendent Whipple had stated.

When you think of Insurance think of C. P. Boers. Adv.

A BELOIT PRISONER DIES AT THE JAIL

Died Suddenly This Afternoon Evidently Suffering Acute Alcoholism

—Committed April 21.

Jack Quinn, a Beloit prisoner at the county jail, died suddenly this afternoon, shortly after three of what was apparently acute alcoholism. He was brought to the jail from the Beloit court April 21, to serve a fifteen day sentence and showed no signs of any trouble until during last night. He appeared rational until shortly after two this morning when he began having visions and raves. He began jumping to his feet, sprang into the air two or three times and dropped to the floor dead. He was evidently seen by floor days although he has been a frequent visitor at the jail in the past few years. It is not known whether he is married or not.

RICHMOND ANALYZES EXPENSE ACCOUNTS

Insists That Organizations Like Home Rule League Are Exempt From Corrupt Practices Act.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., April 28.—The old question of compelling non-partisan or semi-political organizations to file expense statements and otherwise comply with the corrupt practices act, was thrashed out before the senate committee on education and public welfare yesterday afternoon. T. C. Richmond took the ground that such organizations as the Woman's Suffrage association, Home Rule league, Society of Equity, Anti-Saloon league and brewers' associations are not political in the sense that they owe an accounting for their acts to the state. The discussion was on the Frank Hanson bill amending the corrupt practices law.

Mr. Richmond said extreme eulogies by candidates using the campaign pamphlet are not worth the paper they were written on.

He denied that organizations as he referred to were political or partisan or are obliged to report on their expenses. He declared the Home Rule and Taxpayers' league is absolutely non-partisan and that it works entirely in the taxpayers' interest.

Hence, he said, it should not come under the law. He favored repealing the corrupt practices law and drafting a new one "that will strike at real corruption."

He credited the creation of the present act to a feeling resulting from Senator Stephen Smith's campaign that money had been lavishly spent, and he believed Stephenson's campaign had been imposed on the time of thousands of dollars.

But such a condition, he said, does not mean that the legislature is justified in enacting so drastic a law that men "cannot exercise rights of free citizens."

The law was favored, if it is simplified, by the Merchants and Manufacturers' association, Milwaukee, which was represented by Frank G. Smith, D. Davidson, Milwaukee, urged the committee not to weaken the present law, which he said had been of great benefit to Wisconsin in preventing corruption.

Director Favorable Pamphlet.

Lieut. Gov. Dithmar objected to the provision in the Hanson bill which repeats the election pamphlet. He also spoke for the Skogmo bill which retains the election pamphlet but does away with the primary pamphlet, and reduces the fees for space with the object of bringing in all candidates for state and legislative offices. The present pamphlet has not been a success, because of the exorbitant charges for space, and the Skogmo bill proposed to remedy the defects.

Mr. Dithmar wanted good candidates, he said, who will run for office according to law, they should provide the means of informing the electorate of each candidate's qualifications. He said the bill would make the pamphlet self-sustaining.

SIDE TALKS

By RUTH YERGEN CAMERON

MISINFORMING CHILDREN.
One of my little nieces has a queer delusion. She thinks people "grow down," as well as up. One day she told her mother, casually, "By and by you will grow down and have a dolly, too." I know another youngster, a chap of four, who believes that firemen go around setting fire to people's houses.

Everything is so new and so wonderful to a child. His mind is as impressionable as wax. He craves information. Yet so often he gets, in answer to his eager questioning, nothing but ridiculous misinformation. I sometimes wonder how much of this misinformation leaves its imprint through the years. I know of a grown man who confessed to me that he thought for years raising made people crazy because his mother told him so in order to keep him from taking them from the pantry.

A great mass of misinformation is, of course, removed from the mind by later experiences, but some of it, dealing with intangible things must leave some impression.

Children's Questions Often Eye Openers.
The pity is that the opportunity for correctional training presented by a child's questioning should be so abused. Of course a child's questions are sometimes hard to answer even though they deal with simple, every-day things, but that might perhaps serve for a text of a talk for grown-ups. To discover that to put some fact of which we have a fair conception in definite, plain language is hard enough to open our eyes to the slovenliness and incompleteness of our own knowledge.

It may be pleasant to save one's self from such an eye-opener by making up some silly truth and then laughing at one's own wit, but I call it downright mean to trade on a child's credulity.

Questions and Answers.
Question.—What do you think of people who take out a dozen records from a music store and then, without any real intention of buying, want them to be put on the shelves?

Answer.—That they deserve to lose the privilege of taking records on approval, as they undoubtedly will. Unfortunately, the innocent suffer with the guilty, as usual.

I present my thanks to the many letter friends who wrote me that they liked the talk on bundles. I was pleased because it came straight out of my heart and I hoped it would find a place in your paper. The subject, one letter friend writes: "Did you ever read 'Just Folks,' the experience of a young probation officer? She tells how all the neighbors would follow home one of their number who had been to the store, to see the 'unwrapping'."

I met a gentleman friend the other day and he asked to call, and I told him that I did not. When he called the people with whom I am boarding treated him as if I was told I could not have a gentleman coming. When I was at home I could have come. I have known this young man for some time and admire him very much. In fact, I am in love with him. And as he wanted to keep steady company and the people with whom I am boarding object to it, what would you advise me to do? I cannot eat nor sleep over the loss of this man and I mourn all the time and am very lonely. Do you think I am crazy enough to marry? I am very old for my age. What would you do in this case?

LETTER EYES.
As long as you are in love with the man, and find your present home unsatisfactory, I would advise you to marry. If the man really loves you, the opposition afforded by the people with whom you live will only make him all the more determined to win you. He will take you places home. Be cautious whatever you do. The people with whom you live may have a very good reason for wanting to keep you away from the man. Remember that your future happiness depends upon your decision.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is it the time of year to wear white shoes? (2) What do you think of a boy who holds a girl up tight when he dances with her?

PETE AND SLICK.
(1) It is too early.
(2) New dances are strenuous and when a boy learns to dance he often holds a girl tighter than is necessary, from nervousness. This is not true in any other way. Such a boy ought to be of condemned. As for the boy who holds a girl up tight, he ought to be ostracized from society, according to my views, and respectable girls ought to shun him as a boy with bad reputation. Many of my young readers will laugh at my opinion on this subject, but nevertheless I know what I am talking about. Girls who make themselves to be held too tight may come to it that they will be criticized by boys of all stamps.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of nineteen and boarding in the city.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.
For Chickens—Instead of burning bones for chickens, try baking them in a good hot oven, then crushing. The cleanest and most convenient clothesline bag is made from a square bag just wide enough to have clothes hanger sewed to the top. A slit is made down the middle to within four inches of each end, so that the pins may be put in and taken out easily. The advantage of this bag is that it can be hooked on the line and slid along as the clothes are hung up.

To Clean Lace—To wash or clean fine linen or cotton lace, make a suds with warm water and some good white soap, add a few drops ammonia or a little powdered borax. Put lace in this, let stand half hour, then spat with the hand, all dirt is all removed. Be very careful not to rub, as it destroys the texture. If very much soiled, use two quarts water. When clean, rinse twice and in the last water put a little clear spoon soda, one-half cup water, flour to make a soft batter; roll out with the graham flour to one-half inch thick and cut with cookie cutter and bake in moderate oven.

TO REMOVE SMOKE MARKS.
Where gas is used for lighting purposes it usually leaves unsightly black marks on ceiling above chandelier. To remove these make a thick paste of starch and water and with a clean flannel spread it over the marks and allow it to dry. Brush off with a soft brush.

PREVENTS CURTAINS FROM FADING.

How to do up lace or net curtains and have them the same color as when new: When the curtains are rolled and is still hot or boiling put yellow ochre in and stir it all through until you have the shade you want your curtains. Five cents worth of ochre in the powder will be sufficient for a large number of curtains.

TO PRESERVE FLOWERS.

Dip the flowers in melted paraffin, withdrawing them quickly. The liquid should only be hot enough to maintain its fluidity, and the flowers should be dipped one at a time, held by the stem and moved about for an instant to get rid of the air bubbles. Fresh flowers, free from moisture, make excellent specimens.

A C. MORT.

A certain poor woman had received some new underclothes from one who had helped the family. The woman's husband thanked the donor's husband, and a whole drama of humble ambitions might be built round his words. "Mary's mighty glad to have those clothes," he said. Address your questions to Food Editor and you will receive a reply by mail or through this column. Queries unless signed and full name and address of the writer will not be given answer in this column. In giving reply your initials only will be given.

Foods With Fuel Value.
Q. Is there any way of determining just what foods will properly sustain the body? I know of Carbon, Hydrogen, Oxygen, Nitrogen, Sulphur, Phosphorus and a lot of other elements. But how are we to know what foods have the right quantities of these elements? I might fill up on cereals and yet go hungry; I might eat more meat than was good for him; he might grow sick on fruit.

The point I am trying to reach is: "What is a well-balanced ration?" In these hard times one wants to get the proper body-sustaining foods just as cheap as possible. What's the answer?

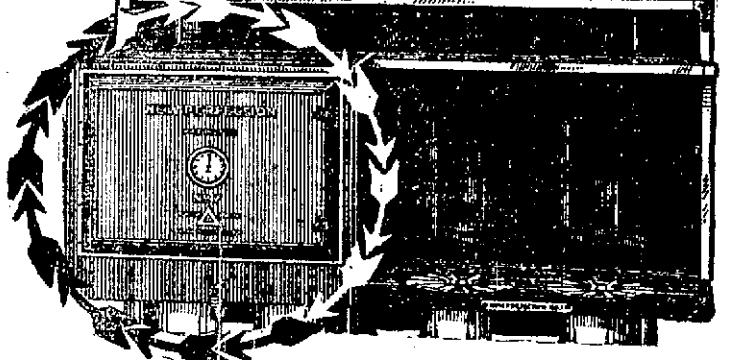

A. The point you raise is an exceedingly vital one and is too deep for extended discussion in this department. The body is in constant need of fuel, but the fuel demand of different individuals varies greatly. One of the best smaller treatises on this subject is a small book of 62 pages, "The Fundamental Basis of Nutrition," by Graham Lusk, published at New Haven, Conn., by the Yale University Press. We would earnestly recommend this book to your attention.

A Matter of Diet.
Q. My daughter has the foolish notion of not eating meat during Lent, but says that the vegetables, macaroni, bread, etc., which she eats are just as nutritious as meat. They tell me that every growing person needs meat. Will you kindly inform me if the foods above mentioned will serve as well as meat?

Mother.
A. It is not true that a purely vegetable diet is as nutritious or as strengthening as a well-chosen meat diet. There are, however, some individuals who are better nourished by a vegetable than by a meat diet. The best kind of diet is the one that is best adapted to the needs of the American people.

Vegetables for Spring.
Q. What are the most healthful vegetables to serve in the early spring?

A. Fresh vegetables are usually keenly relished in the spring. Almost

Glimpses of Married Life

By Mrs. Eva Leonard

"I wish Mrs. Ellison had let me alone; that story sticks to me like a burr," said young Mrs. Scott, who had just been with her husband after the guests had gone. "Ah, Laura, forget it. Why do women gossip over a bit of gossip as if they were birds of prey? That woman next to me, Mrs. Morrison, she says she has a husband who is a perfect angel. 'Did she say that?' I might be interpreted two ways. 'There you go, Great Scott! Laura.' 'Oh, do not take our name in vain,' she laughed. 'Won't you ask Mr. Parsons about it?' 'No, I won't. His tone was irritating. 'You can count me out of this, and do not mention it to mother if you want to keep her respect.' 'I wish I felt well enough acquainted with Mrs. Parsons to ask her about the matter,' mused Mrs. Scott, when left alone. 'I don't want to have her out here and be intimately associated with her if her names are bandied about on people's tongues. If I draw the line on social smirches in the city I surely will be able to do it here. We can next week and I'll keep my eyes and ears open. If I were only a better judge of character! I have been deceived so many times by people that I dare not trust my own judgment.'"

Neil noticed a decided chill in the attitude of young Mrs. Scott at Mrs. Parsons' luncheon and was greatly hurt. Mrs. Ellison kept her herself from his oppression as she went home under pretext of seeing how the little nurse was succeeding with the baby, for her mother had gone home the week before. "The elder Mrs. Scott was as delightful as ever. She walked over with her to see the baby, and remarked on the artistic arrangement of the little home. Altogether, Neil was relieved when the affair was over. "I can't imagine what made young Mrs. Scott so cool to me today," she said to Dick that evening at supper. "She was so friendly and cordial that day at the lawn party. I may have imagined it, but I think Mrs. Ellison was talking about me to her, for she hardly took her eyes off me." "Oh, you surely imagined, knowing what Mrs. Ellison is, she would not dare to assail the character of a guest. She does not know Mrs. Scott." "If she did I would not worry," exclaimed Neil. "It is because Mrs. Scott does not know her things, she may be able to do me harm. I can't imagine why Mrs. Ellison treats me as she does. She gave me the cut direct today again, and she was so cordial that day she took mother out riding before baby came." "The reason is not far to seek," said Dick, making a wry face. Neil looked up inquiringly. "She is jealous of you." "Jealous of me!" repeated Neil incredulously. "Yes, she thinks the doctor comes here too much. As Neil stared in blank astonishment he continued, "She thinks you call him unnecessarily, and that he likes to come." "Neil's face was troubled." "There's absolutely no one else in town that I have any confidence in," Mrs. Ellison is too well known to do you any harm."

"Whereas is known, perhaps, but Mrs. Scott does not know her. 'Well, Mrs. Scott is not necessary to your happiness,' said Dick easily. I thought we could have such good times together and now—Neil wiped her eyes. "There, don't cry, little girl. Remember, we are only borrowing trouble," said Dick comfortingly.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., April 23.—The report of the survey of the Wisconsin college of agriculture, made to the board of public affairs, was given out for publication today. It is contained in a report by Dean L. Russell on the Branson findings.

Discussing the student body, the report shows that Wisconsin furnishes from 17 to 25 per cent of the undergraduates in the college, but only 98 of the 468 graduates in the extended courses since 1878 have remained in Wisconsin as farm agents, teachers or instructors. The explanation given is that other states offer larger wages in farming or teaching. The appeal of scientific agriculture, says Mr. Branson, appears to be more to the city-bred than to the country-reared boy in Wisconsin—and elsewhere as well.

On the subject of "kid-glove" courses, the report says in part: "While it is true that nearly six-sevenths of the students taking the extended courses in the college were not reared on the farm, it does not appear that the college is offering more current criticism calls kid-glove courses; that is to say, purely theoretical courses without regard to practical experience. There is hardly an agricultural college in the land that is not made the butt of this popular subject."

"The courses here do not attract 'downtrodden' and 'idler,' they are not a 'soft snap,' they are not chosen because they are light and easy; they demand long hours and hard work. These are the survey's conclusions following long inquiries."

Falls to Reach Farmwives.
Mr. Branson finds as the most conspicuous omission on the part of the college, as far as the farm is concerned, is the failure to reach and serve the farmwives of the state in anything like the way it has reached and served the farmers. In this field he saw the college's greatest opportunity.

Dean Russell, in his comment, agreed with this opinion, but felt that it does not fairly present the situation. He then called attention to the fact that the college has been successful in solving household problems, and to the fact that only recent years has home economics work been conducted by this college. Other departments, he said, have been cited as examples of extension work for the farm home.

The state's investment in the college is about one-fourth of the total cost. The annual operating expenditures for 1912-13 were $460,000, including $20,000 for farmers' institutes. Federal grants and other outside income amounted to $205,010, making the balance for the university budget for the year for the agricultural college $255,072. This averages a burden upon the people of the state of 10 1/2 cents apiece per year—the price of a nickel and a half.

Instructors Underpaid.
Discussing the college staff, Mr. Branson says on the whole its efficiency is high and there is comparatively little need for improvement anywhere in the college. The faculty is described as hardworking. Full professors average nine hours work per day, associate professors ten hours, and assistant professors eight hours; instructors nine and one-third hours. The faculty, however, is poorly paid. Mr. Branson finds when comparing his members with other faculties throughout the country.

How the vast majority of these faculty members solve the problem of their existence and keep on the safe side of the deal line in Madison is a variable matter, says the report. They stay on in the college, with larger salaries offered elsewhere, is still more wonderful.

He calls the compensation "meager" and "unsatisfactory." The policy of small salaries for teachers of agriculture and laboratory students in agricultural subjects is called a mistake for both the college and the state at large. The college trains good men, says the report, and other states get them by paying larger salaries than Wisconsin offers. Minnesota in particular profits from this condition, employing a larger number of valuable men trained in the Wisconsin college, in her agricultural high schools and colleges.

Favors More Democracy.
The average yearly expenses of agricultural college students are reported by Dean Russell as being $300 to $450. There are many opportunities for student help. The report observes in this connection that "an educational institution is aristocratic in proportion to the cost of attendance upon it. It is an effective form of student help, for an increasing burden of student fees is held to mean a 'developing aristocracy.' Dormitory facilities are also recommended."

In the chapter on college activities, the report goes extensively into the extension work. It says the short courses have probably influenced Wisconsin agriculture more than any other form of recent instruction. Tribute is paid to the many research results which have distinguished the work of the Wisconsin agricultural faculty, particularly of the experiment station. The report says that the college has not succeeded in putting Wisconsin farmers upon a level with Danish farmers in the marketing of dairy products. Through all extension activities, press bulletins and special courses, the college is credited with reaching 225,000 in Wisconsin every year, being one in ten of the entire population, or more than one in five of the country population. It has penetrated to the remotest corners of the state.

Need Economics Course.
Like other colleges, the Wisconsin college began tardily to explore the field of agricultural economics, says Mr. Branson. At the same time, he finds Wisconsin with a single exception leads all the agricultural colleges in the country in work upon the problems of marketing home-raised farm products.

Dean Russell replies to the Branson criticism on the college work in economics by saying that the university's feeling has been that more solid progress would be made by slow and careful development of this work than by a "pyrotechnic" campaign. The college has not aggressively led a propaganda of this kind but has stood back and watched the economic movement develop of the movement.

Dean Russell objects to the statement that the "attitude of the college is unsympathetic or hostile and that it holds itself aloof from the farmers or opposes them." He says the evidence submitted which proves this claim. He declares this is not the attitude of the college at all, and that a serious charge like this merits some substantial proof which should be furnished the board of public affairs.

PHILIPPINE MISRULE SAYS COMMISSIONER

America's Approach to Self Government Is From a Wrong Direction Is Philippine's Claim.
(By Burton K. Standish.)

Washington, April 23.—In the opinion of Manuel L. Quezon, resident commissioner from the Philippines, most American's approach to the question of Philippine progress and Philippine readiness for self-government is from a wrong standpoint, that is to say from the standpoint of American institutions and western habits of thought.

"The Philippines are a people of Oriental ability and type of mind, resident in the Tropics and subject to their own conditions of life and industry," says the commissioner. "It seems to me that to expect them to imitate the United States in all particulars is a gross perversion of the teachings of human experience or of any sound political philosophy."

"Do not understand, however, that I am saying that the Philippines have failed of proving their capacity, even if judged by our standards. He does not. He will offer you the record of the Philippine legislature and since the larger measure of self-government was introduced by the present administration. By our own measuring stick, he asserts, the Philippines have proved themselves to be of man's size, and he would be left free to work out his own destiny."

"Many of the conditions which exist today in the United States are not new, but they are the product of many years of labor and experiment. Many are intended to meet the peculiar needs of a highly industrialized society with a structure of government and social organization in any Eastern country. I think the thoughtful student of race development will concede that it is far better that a nation should develop its own type of culture and of government and should follow its own instincts in selecting a path toward the attainment of a higher civilization than that it should be made a slavish imitator of the government and social group of countries, however elevated may be the civilization of the latter. Even if such a nation did not do as well in the initial stages of self-government, it might do better in the long run, for the slower and less perfect progress was the more solid and stable and therefore 'lasty' to be performed."

Mr. Quezon more seriously that a nation can successfully direct the course of development that must be followed by another. The education of the individual is the most successful when it is made a vehicle for self-expression, the education of a nation or the race made them bring their own penalty. Now, as always, it is true that experience is the best teacher, and that only the endeavor of aspiring and striving can a government attain to practical efficiency. That has been conspicuously the history of the Anglo-Saxon race. America, Mr. Quezon was not a very friendly conqueror, but was the product of long years of struggle and effort. American constitutional government was not the gift of Howe, Cornwallis or the King of England. It is there not a way of national progress from within as compared to that stimulated from without that hasty thinkers sometimes overlook? Are we mindful of the fact that the one priceless advantage of self-development is that it proceeds along the proper line, in accord with the tendencies, peculiarities and special abilities of the people? In other words that it is always a natural growth, while progress imposed from without may result in an unnatural type of evolution?

"Without being over critical, let me speak of this matter frankly. It is a fact that the work of the Americans in the Philippines has not been as free from error as the former officials of the country might have believed. There have been mistakes—mistakes that were very costly to the Philippine taxpayers. There have been injustices and wrongs. Some of the things have been done and other things have been neglected. I do not, however, on that account, underestimate the value of the work as a whole and I gladly reiterate that I am not a critic of the circumstances the Americans have done. I only wish to note the fact that some of the mistakes would not have been made by Philippine acting for themselves."

"The Philippines have shown that they are amply capable of taking over and assimilating the beneficial ideas of western nations, adapting them to their own needs and to the needs of their peculiar situation and drawing intellectual sustenance therefrom. This has been the history of successful civilization everywhere. If it is not progress, but just the reverse if a nation is compelled to confine itself to imitation of another and if it is debared from selecting useful elements of civilization, social, economic and political, and government wherever it can find them throughout the world."

Not His Preference.
Little James was taken to a luncheon, and the hostess served roast beef. He had managed to put away everything else he served, but left the meat untouched on his plate. The hostess asked him why he hadn't eaten it and he replied: "I can't eat Sunday meat." He doesn't like roasted meat, and that is what they generally have at his home on Sundays.

ASK OVER MILLION FROM STATE TO AID IN BUILDING ROADS

Total Applications Will Amount to $1,500,000 According to Returns
Received by Commission.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., April 23.—State aid in the amount of $1,500,000 was asked for by the different town meetings of the state in the election held early in April. The Wisconsin highway commission has received practically complete returns from the towns and the amount demanded shows an increase of approximately $300,000 over the amount asked for last year.

There are 1,070 towns in the state within sixty counties which do work under the state aid plan. Under the law the county and state each contribute equal amounts with the town for highway construction. The other eleven counties of the state are building roads under the county plan, the county paying two-thirds of the cost and the state one-third.

Returns received from 942 towns in the sixty counties of the state working under the town system reported aggregate appropriations of $765,000 this spring as opposed to $447,600 by the same towns at the spring elections last year, an increase of 68 per cent. Based on the estimates of previous years and upon the preliminary increase in the towns that have already reported the towns alone will ask for $886,600 in state aid during 1915.

Action by cities and villages in accordance with law is taken later. Last year the cities applied for $120,000 in state aid and the villages for $136,000. Estimating conservatively that cities will apply for $81,500 and villages for $132,000 for 1915 gives a total application for state aid by towns, villages and cities of $1,070,000. This does not take into consideration the eleven counties of the state operating under a county plan. The amount of state aid that will be asked for by the counties is said to be predicated on the action of the legislature in voting state aid. It has been estimated from previous reports that the counties will ask for aid in the amount of $440,500, which would increase the grand total applications for state aid to the sum of $1,510,500.

The applications for state aid for 1912 totaled $451,317; for 1913, $850,000; for 1914, $1,558,840, and for 1915, $1,230,000.

STOCK JUDGING MEET TO BE BIG DAY HERE

Gathering Originally Planned for Farmer Boys, Now Develops a Meeting for Their Fathers.

The word has already gone out that Saturday, May 2, will be a gala day for Rock county farmers. In the mecca of hundreds of men interested in stock breeding and judging, and of their sons also interested in the same line of agricultural endeavor. While the day was originally decided upon by the board of directors of the Janesville Big fair as the occasion of a preliminary judging contest to show the youngsters from the farm the finer points of sheep, cattle, swine and dairy stock and to have a man well versed in animal husbandry from the university presiding over the stock judging. It has now developed into a meeting of both father and son for the purpose of better stock and the methods of judging.

Men behind the idea of organizing a Rock County Breeders' association, will push their project while the fair men are boosting theirs.

Dr. Munn has secured promise of exhibits for the judging day and an excellent display of draft horses, cattle of the best breeds, and dairy classes, sheep and swine will be here for Prof. Torrey to demonstrate the finer points of better grade stock. He will also lecture on a subject pertaining to farm stock.

It is expected that the stock men will have a speaker for the occasion and complete the matter of organizing the county breeders' association.

There has been some talk of again securing Mr. Scribbs, the federal representative in this section, for breeders. Mr. Scribbs resides at Rosendale, in Fond du Lac county, and his last visit here stated that he would respond to the call of breeders of this vicinity at any time they desired.

Dr. Munn has secured promise of exhibits for the judging day and an excellent display of draft horses, cattle of the best breeds, and dairy classes, sheep and swine will be here for Prof. Torrey to demonstrate the finer points of better grade stock. He will also lecture on a subject pertaining to farm stock.

How Package Foods Safeguard the Interests of Housewife and Grocer

Twenty-first of a series to appear on Food Page of this paper each Thursday

IN the nine years that have passed since the first public agitation over our common food supply, caused by the now famous Food and Drugs Act of 1906, the housekeeper, in her relation to the manufacturer and the retail dealer, has become a factor to be reckoned with. Whatever the strength or weakness of the Pure Food Law, it has at least accomplished the feat of making a nation think. The conscience of the food manufacturer has been aroused; the sense of decency in the retailer has been appealed to; woman—as consumer—has not only been made to realize the need for pure food; how to obtain it has become her business.

All the food laws may have been inaugurated primarily for the purpose of protecting the consumer from adulterated or otherwise impure food products. The mere existence of such laws is not enough. The housekeeper, remembering the disclosures of June, 1908, has little faith. She demands a guarantee that guarantees she wants—redress in case of grievance, and the package with the label is created. Its popularity is amazing. Foodstuffs of all kinds are selected, sorted, cleaned, weighed and put into suitable containers—glass, tin, wood, moisture proof wrappings, single service containers, hermetically sealed jars—and the grocer is forced to enter into a new era of sanitation.

Many orders are given over the telephone. If a bottle of vanilla extract is asked for, a bottle of vanilla extract should be delivered—not a bottle of imitation Vanilla Substitute Flavor, consisting of "Cinnamon, vanilla, dilute alcohol, p-nut juice and artificial color." No class grocer will sneak in bottled trickery when the genuine article is called for.

Most purchasers, consciously or unconsciously, desire an article of true merit. Picture to yourself a housewife giving this order: "Send me up a can of alum baking powder, a loaf of unwrapped bread, a small jar of jam drugged with benzoate of soda, a pound of coal-tar dyed mixed candies for the children, and don't fail to fill my jug with sulphured molasses." This woman would deserve just what she ordered. The thought of the innocent family, however, brings a pang of regret. Many a housewife does order in this way by one of three methods:

(a) Either by asking for adulterated brands;
(b) By naming no brand;
(c) By saying, send me up "some like the last."

These last two methods give the grocer who is so disposed an opportunity to work off inferior goods. While packaged food has been standardized, while the packaged food can be guaranteed, there are also packaged foods which have not been standardized and which carry no guarantee. As in the days of the pork barrel, the prune box and the pickle jar, the food problem is still one of intelligent selection, although the telephone rather than the market basket may be the medium. With the careless housewife to whom extract or baking powder, on the one hand, and keen competition, on the other, it takes a grocer of sterling integrity and staunch resolution to refrain from pushing or substituting an inferior article on which he can perhaps make a larger profit.

BUT—just as the greater number of food manufacturers are now interested in giving the housewife an honest product, far superior than that required by law, just as the intelligent housekeeper is learning to discriminate between this superior article and an inferior brand, so the grocer is beginning to take a new pride in his shop. To display an honest article attractively and sell it at an honest price seems to have become his ambition.

Instances are rare, indeed, where a grocer deliberately tries to push the sale of drugged, dyed or improperly preserved foods when a reliable brand has been named and insisted upon.

The housekeeper can very readily learn that, in the great majority of cases, the grocer has the standard articles on his shelves; that he is willing to give her what she asks for, and that if undesirable goods do come to her kitchen it is due to her carelessness in not asking for the proper brand rather than to substitution by the grocer.

Here is the Food Standard of the Pure Food Town of Westfield, Mass

More exacting than Government Food Standards or State Food Laws.

"Foods shall not contain added ALUM, COPPER, FORMALDEHYDE, SULFUROUS ACID or its Salts, BORIC ACID or its Salts, BENZOIC ACID or its Salts, FORMALIC ACID or its Salts, HYDROFLUORIC ACID or its Salts, SALICYLIC ACID or its Salts, nor any other non-conditional preservative."

"Foods shall not be colored with COAL TAR DYES, nor with poisonous VEGETABLE COLORS, nor be contaminated with inert fillers, nor shall any substance be taken therefrom or added thereto so as to injuriously affect their quality, strength or purity."

"Foods shall be packed and sold under sanitary conditions and package goods shall bear no DISHONEST LABEL nor label bearing any EXaggerated or OBSCURE statements."

For protection to yourself and your family, see that you buy only foods and beverages that are certified under "The Westfield Standard."

You will then be buying only products of high food value—wholesome and pure.

Does Your Grocer Hand You A Package?

Impurities, unreliable weights or measures, deterioration, waste, inconvenience, lack of guarantee and redress—these are the risks we take when purchasing food in bulk; just the reverse are the securities offered when we purchase goods in package form.

When Billy Sunday Came to Town

By ALEXANDER CORKEY

Copyright, 1913, by the
H. K. Fly Co.

The next day the issue of the Courier astounded the people of Bronson.

Mr. Graham had a signed article in the paper denouncing Reginald Nelson and giving his version of the fight in the printing room. He characterized the independence day edition as a mass of libel and promised the people that the owners of the paper would be more careful in their supervision of the newspaper. "The Courier has always borne the reputation of being a conservative and safe paper, and we regret very much that this adventurer, who wormed himself into the confidence of so many of our citizens, has brought such a disgrace upon us." These were the closing words of Mr. Graham's statement. The citizens were at once divided into two camps, some asserting that they always knew that Reginald Nelson was an impostor, and the others, at first greatly in the majority, protested that the editor had been misjudged.

In the issue of the day following notice was given of the suit against Reginald by the Courier Publishing company, and dark hints were made here and there in the paper in regard to stories which had become current regarding the immigrant's career in England.

It was even reported that he had deserted a wife in the old country, that he was a fugitive from justice and that he was an ex-convict.

These stories were also circulated on the streets of Bronson, and the popular sentiment began to turn against the unfortunate Reginald.

CHAPTER XVII. Brain Fever.

AFTER a week a good deal of the excitement had calmed down, and Ned Rowlands was in charge as editor, although he was assisted daily by Mr. Graham, who spent a large part of his time in the newspaper office.

The city administration made another apparently successful effort to banish open gambling and vice, but this second display of reforming zeal was much less convincing than the first, and the reformers began to organize for a new city ticket at the fall election.

During these days Reginald Nelson lay helpless in his room at the Cameron home. The blow on his head, combined with the mental shock which he had received on the evening of the fatal July 4, produced an attack of brain fever which wasted the young man day by day. The charges against him at police headquarters had been dismissed, but his condition was pitiable. He was altogether without money, having failed to draw his salary from the Courier treasury during his term as editor, and a judgment for the amount of his note to the newspaper company having been passed against him. His reputation seemed lost, as every day his enemies gained ground, and the stories which had been scattered broadcast were now commonly believed.

"I fear that was a fatal blow," said the doctor about two weeks after the encounter.

Dr. Gracely and Allan Rutledge were discussing the case in the front room of the Cameron home.

"What does he need to help him?" asked the minister, with moist eyes.

"He is discouraged in body, soul and spirit," replied the doctor. "If he could be moved out of Bronson to some quiet country place for a month or two there is a chance that he might begin to regain his faculties."

"I know what we will do," responded Allan Rutledge. "Mr. Derwent was here yesterday inquiring for him. I was afraid to allow him to see Reginald, but he seemed greatly interested in the young man. I happened to be here when he called. He mentioned that he wished he was well enough to go home with him to the farm."

"I know Derwent's place well. That would be just the place for him," said the doctor quickly.

For several days previous to this no one had been allowed to see Reginald except Allan Rutledge and the doctor, but that morning Joy Graham appeared at the Cameron home. Mrs. Cameron greeted her sadly, telling how poorly the young man was. "They have just murdered the brain," said the Scotchwoman, beginning to cry, "and those awful lies they are telling about him. People are beginning to believe them." Mrs. Cameron covered her face and wept silently.

"Let me see him," Joy pleaded.

"I will ask the nurse."

In a few moments she returned and led Joy upstairs. When the girl saw the wan face of the invalid she was startled at the awful change which two weeks had wrought. He put out his hand feebly.

"You will get well, Mr. Nelson, and you will finish your work in Bronson yet."

The light in the sick man's eyes grew brighter as she spoke. "I believe

"I believe in you," she whispered.

In you," she whispered, "with all my heart and soul."

From that day hope began to spring up in the heart of the stricken man. A few days later Allan Rutledge spoke to Reginald about his removal to the Derwent farm.

"Take me out there," he said feebly. "I want to get well. I will fight my battle in Bronson to a finish yet."

The minister was pleased to see the rising spirits of his friend. The day before he was removed to the country Mr. Townley called to see him.

"I hope you don't think I made a mistake in inviting you to Bronson," said Mr. Townley as they talked together.

"No, no," Reginald replied. "I have been wounded in the battle, but not killed."

"We had a great meeting at the Y. M. C. A. last Sunday afternoon," said Mr. Townley, "and we vindicated you. The Courier has dug its own grave."

"The right is bound to win," said Reginald, with a little smile.

Mr. Derwent drove in with his carriage to bring the young man out to his home, and Vivian accompanied him. The girl was delighted to see his growing cheerfulness as he left Bronson behind.

"I am glad to get away from Bronson," he admitted to her. "I am going back, but a sick soldier longs for his home, and not for the battle front."

One August day, early in the month, George Caldwell was busy with his ledger in the bank, when he heard a pleasant "good morning" from some one outside the railing. He glanced up and responded, "Glad to see you, Miss Joy. When did you get back?"

"Just this morning," answered Joy Graham. "I came over on the interurban to look after a few matters of business. We are having a very pleasant outing at the lake." It was the custom for many of the residents of Bronson to spend the heated months in cottages at some of the beautiful little lakes which dot that part of southern Michigan. The Grahams had a cottage which was built by the side of a lake connected with Bronson by an interurban electric railroad so that Mr. Graham came back and forth to his office, and it was a short trip for the family to return if necessary.

"I suppose your father and mother came with you?" interrogated George Caldwell.

"No, I came alone. Papa is in the east with Roland trying to find a new editor for the paper. Ned Rowlands has proved a failure as you know."

"It was too bad your father had a quarrel with Mr. Nelson. He was making the Courier boom."

"How is Mr. Nelson getting along?" asked the girl quickly.

"He is almost well again," responded the other heartily. "The fresh air of the country and the hospitality of the Derwent home have worked wonders with him."

"And the cheerful companionship of such a girl as Vivian," laughed Joy Graham.

"Vivian has been very attentive to him," answered George Caldwell, with an air of resignation.

"She doesn't seem to pay much attention to these stories that have been going the rounds all over town," continued Joy. "They are discussing Mr. Nelson out at the lake. Some seem to think that where there is so much smoke there must be some fire."

"Those foolish stories are made up of whole cloth," responded the young banker angrily.

"But some people believe them," said the girl, shaking her head. "Even at the lake a number think that Mr. Nelson is an adventurer, and I understand there is quite a sentiment against him in Bronson."

"I am getting real angry about the treatment Mr. Nelson has received," said George Caldwell. "I don't like the way he was able to catch Vivian's attention, but I believe in fair play and honest dealing. His enemies have thrown so much mud that some of it has stuck."

"I am glad to know that you have confidence in him," said Joy Graham earnestly.

"Of course we have confidence in him," exclaimed the young man earnestly. "Just last night a number of us had a conference in regard to his future, and we are going to see that he gets a fair start in some other place. It would seem to be unwise for him to try to establish himself again in Bronson."

"Do all his friends think he ought to leave Bronson?" asked Joy Graham in a disappointed tone.

"No, no. Both Dr. Rutledge and Mr. Townley think he ought to remain here and fight his battle out to a finish."

"Do you know what plans Mr. Nelson has been making for himself?" asked the girl.

"No," responded the other. "I saw him the other day, and his only anxiety was for the full recovery of his health. That blow on his head which the policeman dealt him might have been disastrous, but we are now assured there will be no permanent ill results."

"I want you to take me out to Derwent's this evening, George," said the girl a little later, as the two friends parted.

"I shall be glad to do so," answered the other. "And I know Mr. Nelson will be delighted to see you."

"Don't say anything to any one about it," cautioned the girl. "Drive up for me at the house about 7 o'clock."

At the appointed hour that evening a very handsome, single seated motorcar stopped before the Graham home, and in a few moments George Caldwell and Joy Graham were speeding out of Bronson into the country. It was a delightful August evening and for a good part of the way they passed through the lovely wooded drive by the side of the Bronson river. It was not the nearest way to the Derwent farm, but with his high powered motorcar George Caldwell decided that the "longest way around was the pleasantest way there."

As the two friends whirled along they conversed on topics of interest to them both; the prosperity of the Central church under the administration of Dr. Rutledge, the progress of reform in Bronson, and the future fortunes of Reginald Nelson.

It was the latter topic that evidently was nearest the heart of Joy Graham that evening.

"What are some of these stories that are still telling around about Mr. Nelson?" asked Joy.

"They say that he abandoned a wife in England; that he is a fugitive from justice and that his record is bad."

"I heard that story about a wife in England long ago," responded the girl with disgust. "Roland told it to me at first, and I thought there might be something to it as Mr. Nelson has been so silent about his life in England, but I persuaded Mrs. Rutledge to ask him, and she says his look of amazement at such a charge convinced her of the absolute falsity of the slander."

"The only excuse there is for these stories is the fact that Mr. Nelson has been so quiet about his English life, as you just said," interposed George Caldwell, thoughtfully.

The motorcar was rapidly approaching the Derwent home. "I have not been out here since the night of our sleigh ride party," said the girl. "What a lovely time we had that evening. Ah, there's the home!" she exclaimed as the car shot round a bend in the road.

On every side the well tilled fields gave evidence of the prosperity of the farmers, and an air of peace and contentment brooded over the countryside. "This was an ideal place for Mr. Nelson to come," said Joy Graham, with enthusiasm, as the motorcar climbed the little hill that led into the yard of the Derwent farm.

It was still early in the evening, and Mr. Derwent was attending to the usual evening chores, while Mrs. Derwent and Vivian were busy in the house. Reginald Nelson was sitting alone on the ample porch which extended across the entire front side of the home. He had been thinking to himself about his future plans.

"I am almost well again," he thought. "I must plan for my next move. If only I were able I would like to start a real newspaper of my own in Bronson. I believe I could win in spite of McCrea, Graham, Gregory, the Courier and the very devil himself," he said to himself confidently.

At the supper that evening Mr. Derwent had commented on the loss of patronage which the Courier was sustaining. "I came to Bronson at the psychological moment," Reginald meditated. "I seem to have been outwitted in the first skirmish, but I will win in the end, so help me God!"

There was a look of intenseness and determination on his face as he gave himself to these reflections. He was still pale, but the light had come back to his eyes, and he was regaining his strength in a remarkable way. He noticed the automobile speeding along the road and soon recognized it as George Caldwell's. A moment more and the car stopped in the yard a few feet from where he sat, and Joy Graham was shouting to him:

"Splendid, Mr. Nelson! Splendid! You are a well man again!"

Dinner Stories

A professor of Illinois university who is very popular among the students, was entertaining a group of them at his residence one night. Taking down a magnificent sword that hung over the fireplace, he brandished it about, exclaiming: "Never will I forget the day I drew this blade for the first time. 'Where did you draw it, sir?' an awestruck freshman asked. 'At a raffle,' said the professor.

"Halt! Who goes there?" came the sharp challenge of the border patrol.

A poorly dressed man with strange twinkling eyes crept up. He carried a zither. "A friend," he said. "Also an actor."

"How did you get through the Carpathians?" demanded the patrol, his bayonet the while pressing the actor's breast.

"On a pass," replied the actor. "The cold steel was lifted, and in gratitude the actor played the names of the border towns on his zither."

The governor's wife was telling Bridget about her husband.

"My husband, Bridget," she said, proudly, "is the head of the state militia."

"Oh, t'ought as much, ma'am," said Bridget, cheerfully. "Ain't he got the faine malicious look?"

"Are all these things injurious to my health?" asked the patient after he had inspected the list of things he must not eat.

"No," said the doctor, "but you've got to economize somehow if you're going to pay my bill."

SUCCESS LETTERS

Being One Of A Series Of Letters From Gratified Want Ad. Users

Janesville, Wis., Apr. 22, 1915.

Gentlemen, Janesville, Wis.

Gentlemen: Do "Want Ads" bring results? I say emphatically "Yes," for I know, and anyone doubting the ability of the little "ads" to accomplish the desired end, needed but to be at our home on the nights of March 31st, April 1st, and 2nd, and the afternoon of the 3rd, to be thoroughly convinced of their efficiency. On the night of March 31st, the following "ad" appeared in the "Too late to Classify", and on the evenings of April 1st and 2nd, it appeared under "Household Goods For Sale":

FOR SALE—Bedroom suite $14; extra table $3; upholstered rocker $1; odd dresser $4; rocker $5; stove $2; stand $2; tub, wringer, board, etc.; $1; one bed $1; 6-piece chamber set $2; plate rack $50. Call 1833-11 or 1833-12, Lincoln St., evenings or Saturday afternoon. 1833-12.

During these three nights and Saturday afternoon, counting phone calls and people who came to the house to view the furniture, we must have had every one of a Hundred and Fifty inquiries about these things, and the best of it all was, that we sold everything, and could have sold some things several times. We have used the "Want Ads" in various ways at different times, with the same pleasing results.
